

LA SALLE PREP'S MIDDLE SCHOOL EDUCATORS' INSTITUTE PRESENTS: "LITERACY MATTERS"

THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 2009 - 9 A.M. TO 3 P.M.

La Salle invites all middle school classroom teachers to La Salle's campus for an engaging one-day seminar offering research-based literacy strategies to enhance and support student reading and writing in the classroom across all content areas.

Middle school teachers of all disciplines are encouraged to attend as well as technology and resource educators, learning specialists and teacher's aides. Principals and vice principals are encouraged to attend.

Teachers will leave this workshop with classroom-ready, practical strategies that improve students' reading confidence, fluency, comprehension and engagement and to enhance the classroom reading environment. This session will also focus on writing-to-learn strategies. A binder of resources will be offered as part of the registration fee.

Members of La Salle's Literacy Team will serve as the instructors for the Institute. The team includes the Vice Principal for Student Life, La Salle's librarian and reading specialist, and teachers from the English, math, social studies, and science departments. These outstanding educators have worked together for two years to improve student literacy as part of La Salle's innovative staff development model which employs teacher-leaders as in-house experts.
